

TREATY ISSUE IN BOTH CAMPS

Red Hot Fight Certain at Conventions Between Contending Factions.

(International News Service.)

Minority reports on the League of Nations plank will be submitted to both the Democratic and Republican Conventions, leaders of the two parties forecast today, while around these reports the biggest rumpuses in the recent history of either party were predicted.

Against Reservations.

That Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, "irreconcilable" opponent of the league, will be on the committee of resolutions and will frame the Republican platform at Chicago, is considered a certainty, and, backed by other supporters of Senator Hiram Johnson, he will fight like a bear against any endorsement of the treaty of Versailles as amended by Senator Lodge's or other reservations. Senator Borah will insist on a "no league" plank in the G. O. P. platform, and unless he can find a "bitter" endorsement of the treaty, the least that is expected of them is a red-hot minority report which, on the floor of the convention, will be the signal of a touch-and-go battle between the Johnsonians and the middle-of-the-roads, the outcome of which no one here is willing to prophesy.

William Jennings Bryan will be the torch of the San Francisco caucus. He, too, in all human probability, will be on the platform committee of his party, and, in his turn, will lead a ferocious charge against the advocates of a Wilsonian league, in an attempt to secure a "league-or-the-best-terms-possible" plank in the Democratic platform.

Bryan May Dissent.

Falling in this, his friends declare, he will surely dictate a scathing minority report and take the fight to the floor of the convention. What will happen there is best answered by a huge question mark.

Republicans declare the middle-of-the-roads of their party—those favoring a league with reservations between the Johnsonians and the middle-of-the-roads—will win out at Chicago, while Democrats here are confident the followers of President Wilson will defeat Bryan and anti-administration members of the platform committee. But on both sides admit they do not believe either Borah or Bryan will drop the fight in the event of defeat in committee.

The hope gives the Californian tremendous power in the G. O. P. convention. Politicians are asking what will happen if Lodge's reservations are endorsed, thus ruling Johnson off the course. Will he trot with the team or kick over the traces? The answer usually given is: Wait and see.

There is little likelihood of either platform committee reaching an agreement on the league, both sides agree. So unless a time limit is put on debate when the question comes before the conventions the caucuses promise to be the longest and most spirited on record.

THINK BANDITS PLANNED MT. AIR ROBBERY ALSO

Officials Hear Scene Was Shifted to Sandy Springs as Better "Prospect."

That the bandits who looted the Sandy Spring bank, killing Francis M. Hollowell, also had planned to rob the Mount Airy National Bank, at Mount Airy, Md., was the information received yesterday by State's Attorney Thomas L. Dawson, of Montgomery county.

The shift to Sandy Spring, it is thought, was not made until one of the bandits visited Mount Airy and found that the institution was not favorable for a raid because of the thick settlements of the city.

Additional indictments against members of the gang that looted the Sandy Spring bank will be asked of the Montgomery county grand jury when it convenes in special session at Rockville on Monday.

The grand jury has already brought two indictments against two members of the alleged bandit gang, Clarence Wilson and John Kelley, alias Irish Patsy, both of whom are in jail awaiting trial.

Let Cuticura Be Your Beauty Doctor

Obtain New Life by Taking HOWELL'S LYMPHINE TABLETS

Restores lost nerve force, creating new life. Improvement comes to stay, guaranteed free from Chloral, Cocaine, Morphine or other narcotic drugs. Write for booklet. Each package contains 30 days' treatment by mail. $1.00. J. L. Howell, 1211 Broadway, New York. Sold by People's Drug Store and other leading druggists.

WATCH THE BIG 4

Stomach-Kidneys-Heart-Liver. Keep the vital organs healthy by regularly taking the world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—

GOLD MEDAL HARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The National Remedy of Holland for centuries and endorsed by Queen Wilhelmina. At all druggists, three sizes. Look for the same Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation.

'Bluebeard' Discloses How He Rid Himself Of Washington Woman

This is the third chapter of the confession of J. P. Watson, alias 'Bluebeard', who has admitted killing nine of his twenty-five wives. The confession is in the form of answers to questions of District Attorney Woolwine of Los Angeles.

CHAPTER III.

Q. From what time do you figure your mental change? A. Shortly after the war I began to have trouble; I went all to pieces.

Q. Where were you? A. Calgary and Edmonton.

Q. How many of these women that you have been with has money where you might have profited in case of their death? A. The ones that are dead, with the exception of one, had practically nothing and two or three of them not a dollar, while the wealthy ones are living.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

BLUEBEARD SEEKING PROFITS OF MOVIES

LOS ANGELES, May 15.—"Bluebeard" Watson today asked who was going to get the money realized from the display of moving pictures of himself. Watson implied that he didn't think it quite fair that he should do all the murdering and have some one else get the rake off.

In fact Watson had several complaints today when a reporter called to see him. His voice was plaintive as he asked: "Why didn't they treat me fairly. They never could have convicted me. I never left them any evidence."

He told about going on the search for the body of Miss DeLoe, one of the women he murdered. He added: "I went down as weak and sick as I was. I stood up there and let them take moving pictures of me pointing out the place. I want to know how much money they got out of it. I told them to keep their mouths shut—something of the kind—that she had said enough. She said: 'I will stick this pin through you,' and grabbed her hatpin. There was a bank near with sharp corners. When she grabbed the hatpin I pushed her just as hard as I could and she went back. Her head struck the corner of the bank, and she died."

Q. And you went outside to your automobile and got a hammer or a hatchet? A. I think it was a hammer. Something just seemed to tell me she is killed, the best thing to do is to finish up as soon as possible and do something with the body.

Q. Had you previously during your life with her those desires to kill her? A. I may in a light way but fought it off.

Q. Now, when you stripped the body what did you do with the clothing? A. Later I burned it in a shack. (Here he tells, as published, how he then burned the shack to obliterate signs of his crime. The testimony here turns to Agnes Wilson, one of his other wives. In an earlier confession he told how he pushed her into the lake with an oar.)

Q. Where did the killing of Agnes Wilson occur? A. In Washington. We were in Seattle. We went out on the lake—we had been there several times.

Q. What did you do with the blood, if any, on the oar. A. There was no blood. She had a hat on. The oar seemed to daze her and kind of paralyze her. I believe I threw a rock at her or struck at her while she was in the water.

Q. Did they strike her head? A. Yes. Like I threw three and I think they did because I was right on the edge of the water, and I came up close and it was a rocky shore.

(Another chapter in this amazing confession will be printed tomorrow in The Washington Times.)

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

PREPAREDNESS IS URGED OF C. OF C.

Senator Wadsworth and Congressman Kahn Address Military Ceremonial.

Preparedness both for military purposes and the future industrial development of the country was the keynote of addresses by Senator Wadsworth and Congressman Kahn last night before members and friends of the Washington Chamber of Commerce at the Willard Hotel.

The speakers were the special guests of the chamber at the "military night" ceremonies. Forty-one firms were presented with patriotic certificates during the evening for services rendered in assisting in the carrying out of the war program.

Since the Administration of Washington today when a reporter called to see him. His voice was plaintive as he asked: "Why didn't they treat me fairly. They never could have convicted me. I never left them any evidence."

He told about going on the search for the body of Miss DeLoe, one of the women he murdered. He added: "I went down as weak and sick as I was. I stood up there and let them take moving pictures of me pointing out the place. I want to know how much money they got out of it. I told them to keep their mouths shut—something of the kind—that she had said enough. She said: 'I will stick this pin through you,' and grabbed her hatpin. There was a bank near with sharp corners. When she grabbed the hatpin I pushed her just as hard as I could and she went back. Her head struck the corner of the bank, and she died."

Q. And you went outside to your automobile and got a hammer or a hatchet? A. I think it was a hammer. Something just seemed to tell me she is killed, the best thing to do is to finish up as soon as possible and do something with the body.

Q. Had you previously during your life with her those desires to kill her? A. I may in a light way but fought it off.

Q. Now, when you stripped the body what did you do with the clothing? A. Later I burned it in a shack. (Here he tells, as published, how he then burned the shack to obliterate signs of his crime. The testimony here turns to Agnes Wilson, one of his other wives. In an earlier confession he told how he pushed her into the lake with an oar.)

Q. Where did the killing of Agnes Wilson occur? A. In Washington. We were in Seattle. We went out on the lake—we had been there several times.

Q. What did you do with the blood, if any, on the oar. A. There was no blood. She had a hat on. The oar seemed to daze her and kind of paralyze her. I believe I threw a rock at her or struck at her while she was in the water.

Q. Did they strike her head? A. Yes. Like I threw three and I think they did because I was right on the edge of the water, and I came up close and it was a rocky shore.

(Another chapter in this amazing confession will be printed tomorrow in The Washington Times.)

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made by Watson to District Attorney Woolwine, the gambler slave starting facts. In the text the murderer is designated as Watson and not under the name of Gilliam, which he later declared to be his true name.

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

pany, American Rolling Mills Company, Asbestos Covering Company, Asher Fireproofing Company, Barber & Ross, George M. Barker Company, J. Baumgarten & Sons Company, J. H. Barton & Co., Cunningham Plumbing Supply Company, A. H. Dick Company, Doubleday-Hill Electric Company, E. E. Duvall & Co., G. W. Forberg, Gallier & Hugsely, Harry J. Gielas, Grove Lime and Coal Company, Hires-Turner Glass Company, H. G. M. Howard Manufacturing Company, J. W. Hunt Company, Johnson & Wimsatt, McCambridge & McCambridge, P. P. May & Co., J. A. Messer & Co., Murray Brothers, E. J. Murphy Company, George F. Muth & Co., National Electrical Supply Company, W. A. Pierce Lumber Company, Potomac Lumber Company, Hugh. Rellie Company, Rosalyn Steel and Cement Company, Rudolph & West, E. G. Schafer & Co., Shull Co., Inc., Thomas Somerville Company, Southern Building Supply Company, Southern Millwork Manufacturers, Emergency Bureau, Underwood Typewriter Company, United States Steel Products Company and Washington Stair and Ornamental Iron Works.

D. C. DONS STRAW "LIDS" DESPITE COOL WEATHER

Prognosticator Says That Summer "Kadies" Will Escape Showers But May Be Frosted.

With a temperature 4 degrees colder than that of May 15, 1919, Washingtonians officially put on straw hats and panamas today.

The Weather Forecaster promises fair weather, however, which assures the wearers of the "kadies" that it is not in danger of getting wet.

A light frost is promised in the suburbs, but the fact that tomorrow will be fair and slightly warmer, cheers one up a bit. The temperature at 8 a. m. was 48 degrees.

The forecast for May 15, 1919, read: "partly cloudy tonight, probably followed by showers late tonight or early tomorrow morning. Temperature at 8 a. m., 52 degrees. Normal temperature for May 15 for the last thirty years, 64 degrees."

Q. And you refused it? A. Yes.

Q. In an additional confession made